Although I grew up playing multiple sports at competitive levels, volleyball has always been my favorite. In high school I played volleyball, basketball, ran track, and played golf on varsity levels. I wanted to play volleyball year-round, and played at the club level with A5 Volleyball. While I loved playing all sports at a competitive level, a severe lower back injury caused me to settle down my senior year of high school. Winning the A/AA GHSA State Volleyball Championship was a fantastic way to end my competitive volleyball career. Throughout college I enjoyed playing any intramural sport possible with any pick-up basketball games I could fit in along the way.

After graduating from Georgia Tech in 2016 with a B.S. in Biology I worked in a Chick-fil-A restaurant for about a year. I now work for the Chick-fil-A Support Center as a consultant on the Beyond the Restaurant team. In my free time, I enjoy playing golf on the weekends whenever possible and joining community sports leagues throughout the year. My desire to be around the sport of volleyball has not changed. Not only do I hope to learn valuable lessons from the coaching side of the sport, I hope to make a lasting impact on players that goes beyond their volleyball playing careers and is applicable for the years to come.
